COMMENTS ON THE CLINTON HOUSING AUTHORITY RESIDENT ADVISORY BOARD ON THE FINAL VERSION OF THE PHA PLAN

1. Procedural History of the Plan Implementation

The Clinton Tenant and Community Development Organization (“CTCDO”) was formed in August 1999 as a resident council serving two out of five of Clinton's public housing projects. From its inception, the CTCDO attempted to gain access and establish a working relationship by requesting participation in all aspects of Clinton Housing authority (“CHA”) management and operation decisions regarding tenant issues. The CTCDO requested the CHA appoint it as the Resident Advisory Board given their status as the only duly elected tenant union in Clinton. The CHA denied the CTCDO's request for RAB certification. CHA challenged the CTCDO's legitimacy initially in attempts to prevent participation by claiming it was not a jurisdiction wide organization. The apparent purpose of this claim was to allow the CHA to appoint persons to the Resident Advisory Board (“RAB”) it considered amendable to CHA goals and objectives. Attempts to resolve RAB composition issues were not successful until February 2000. From August 1999 through February 2000 CTCDO and CHA went through a series of meetings, conferences and correspondence exchange, which did not yield a resolution of the matter. During this period, CHA attempted to insert issues regarding the implementation of the Five-Year and Annual Plan while simultaneously challenging the CTCDO's right to serve as the RAB pursuant to 24 C.F.R. 903.13. In addition, CHA has never complied with regulations requiring providing a full forty-five days notice for any public hearing regarding implementation of the Five Year and Annual Plan including the final public hearing scheduled for April 11, 2000. CHA required the RAN to submit all its comments regarding the plans at this time even though there were never actual discussions regarding the plan. CHA, rather required the RAB to review all the information in a relatively short period of time without ever discussing or clarifying its positions or goals. Instead, CHA has engaged in a pattern of challenging the CTCDO and thus RAB at every level, while simultaneously proceeding with the implementation of the plan and thus denying the RAB and tenants of meaningful participation in this process. The Clinton RAB would also like to note that the CHA refused to meet and discuss the policies and implementation of the Five Year and Annual Plans. Any attempts made by the CHA to schedule meetings were always done with lack of proper notice at inopportune times. Had CHA allowed for formation of the RAB at an earlier time period and not hindered the process and participation at each state, the RAB would have been able to obtain more meaningful information regarding the process. The RAB would have proposed a vastly different plan that did not deal so much with issues of capital improvements but rather substantive issues that concern tenants including but not limited to employment and training, establishment of a community center, grievance procedures, rent calculation and maintenance and developments. The RAB hereby submits these comments as its position on policy regarding the referenced matters. The RAB would also like to note that these comments are based on an inadequate and defective process and the comments reflect the described process.

2. Comments on the Five-Year Plan

1. Increase customer satisfaction: One manner in which management can increase customer satisfaction is to create new methods/procedures/ policies for responding to tenant concerns. The substantive portions of the CHA plan do not fully address customer satisfaction. Although the RAB understands the need for capital improvements and the need to modernize current housing, the long-term effects of the proposed goals do not adequately address tenants' needs. One of the major needs tenants have expressed is better response to complaints of needed repair and maintenance. Another goal lacking in the Five-Year Plan that the RAB would like to see in future plans is establishing self-sufficiency programs for current residents. The RAB has expressed a commitment to working cooperatively with the CHA in creating job placement programs and career training services to foster employability as a means of improving the lives of tenants. The CHA's Five-Year Plan is also silent on ensuring Equal Opportunity in Housing for all Americans. The RAB would propose that the CHA undertake measures to ensure access to assisted housing to all persons regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, familial status and disability. The growing diversification of the population in Clinton and the surrounding areas require the CHA to address these concerns.

2. Concentrate Efforts to Improve Specific Management Functions: The RAB does not oppose the CHA's efforts to improve the aesthetic quality of the living environment, strengthen the CHA's financial position and reserves or improve the development and safety. The RAB's only concern on this issue is the extent to which CHA will allow the RAB to participate and consider proposals for improvement.

3. Comments on Annual Plan

The RAB has determined that rather than challenge the CHA's plan line by line, it will rather set forth the policy they would have proposed to the CHA had they been given adequate the opportunity to participate in the process.

2. Rent Calculation: The RAB proposes the establishment of a ceiling rent be included in the calculation of income-based rent and flat rent. The ceiling rent would benefit both income-based rent and flat rent tenants. The ceiling should be established at the same rate as the flat rent rate in order to encourage income based families in transition from government benefits work continued their employment in the market. The purpose of the calculating ceiling rent at the same rate as the flat rent is to give greater protection to tenants. Currently, the CHA plan allows for transition from flat rent to income-based only in the event of financial hardship. The RAB seeks greater protections for tenants from than that stated in the plan for tenants.

3. Maintenance and management” The RAB’s proposal for improving maintenance and management is for the CHA to hire additional employees to maintain better staffing levels in the maintenance department. Currently, the goals established for maintenance cannot be achieved without adding personnel. Tenants have voiced concern about the inability of CHA and maintenance to adequately respond to reports of needed repairs. Some tenants report that units have gone without repairs or painting for several years. The current staff levels are not suitable to address all CHA federal housing developments. CHA should give public housing tenants first priority hiring an all maintenance and management available positions. (See supra. Services, Jobs, Training and Community Work Requirements)

4. Grievance Procedures: The major concern for the RAB regarding the Grievance Procedure is the selection of pre-qualified individuals for hearing panels. The RAB’s position states that the selection of pre-qualified individuals should be determined with the participation of the local tenant organization or jurisdictional aide organization. In addition, the selection of the CHA employee by the Executive Director should be determined randomly and not subject to the Executive Directors personal determination. The hearing panel creates a conflict of interest when a hearing panelist tenant sits in judgement of an aggrieved tenant who resides in the same development. The procedures make not such presumption of conflict or accommodation for the personal selection of the Executive director to appoint his-her employee to determine the validity of a grievance. Rather than make the selection subject to personal biases, the RAB would propose a random CHA rotation of eligible employees to sit on such panels or as hearing officers. Such list should be made monthly and subject to modification only upon illness, employment termination or personal emergency. The RAB would also oppose the Executive Director having any direct role in determining eligibility or hearing grievances complains since this could create conflicts strengthen the perception of personal bias.

5. Capital Improvements: This has been the most contentious issue regarding CHA’s plan. The CHA’s plan fails to adequately address the day to day concerns of tenants in public housing. The proposal set forth by the Cha for capital improvements prioritizes external improvements over individual unit renovations. The RAB's policy on capital improvements proposes prioritizing internal unit renovations first, and then making necessary external modifications to the landscape, parking lot and individual buildings. The RAB opposes the CHA’s proposal to build new maintenance building. Currently, the CHA has no plans to expand its stock of public housing. Building and new maintenance building is a misallocation of resources considering that the tenant’s primary complains regarding maintenance and deal with a lack or response time and inadequate repairs. CHA has placed this goal above all others with little or no benefit to the tenants. Increasing aesthetic quality is not the primary concern of tenants. A RAB survey has found that unit renovation and handicap accessibility were the primary concern of a large percentage of tenants because those are the issues that affect their day-to-day lives. The goal of CHA in its capital improvement plan is to enhance the cosmetic appearance first, and if funds are available, then address tenant concerns. The RAB strongly believes this is a poor choice of priorities. (See supra. Services, Jobs, Training and Community Work Requirements).

6. Services, Jobs, Training and Community work Requirements: The CHA has failed to include any plan regarding establishing a self-sufficient community. By establishing policies that create job training opportunities and employment, the CHA would increase revenue since it has established flat rent alternatives to tenants. The RAB proposes that CHA be required to employ public housing tenants in capacities suited to their talent, skill and competency level, enter into contracts with resident owned businesses, and require contractors hired by the CHA to employ public housing tenants. The CHA should also coordinate with local service agencies to assist public housing tenants in obtaining the described services. For example, one of the issues of great concern to public housing tenants are childcare needs. The CHA could create a childcare facility and employ duly qualified tenants to aid and assist fellow tenants at reasonable rates. By taking such steps, CHA would invest in the future of its tenants, assure future incoming revenue and improve the general quality of life of tenants in public housing. Finally, should the CHA build any new structures, the structure should be for a community center/recreational area. (See infra. Capital Improvements). Currently, tenants have limited access to areas designated for community use due to management restrictions.

7. Safety and Crime Prevention: the RAB has expressed concern of the absence of adequately addressing crime on CHA property. One of the major concerns has been the lack of CHA effort to obtain necessary police/security personnel to address crime. Vandalism and recreational drug use is quite common on CHA property. The capital improvement portion of the plan addressed this issue superficially. Although lighting and altering the landscape of Harborview Apartments might create a more aesthetically attractive area, the crime issues should be addressed by the CHA. CHA has repeatedly stated that crime is an issue that involves tenants. This position has been unutilized to absolve the CHA of primary responsibility for formulating and implementing an effective safe policy. The RAB would propose that CHA attempt to obtain funds to create a satellite police station at Harborview Apartments. The presence of the Clinton Police Department on CHA property would send a message to the overall community that the town and residents have committed themselves to creating a safer community.
